MASSES OF PENANCE.

Catholic Churches Offer Prayers for the Pope's Freedom.

While resident Italians were celebrating to-day a mass of penance was said in all the Catholic Churches throughout the entire United States, and in nearly every part of the world. They were celebrated in purple vestments, which is the symbol of mourning and penance.

The litany of the saints and special prayers were also solemnly chanted in all the churches here, in accordance with the letter which the Cardinal issued a few days ago, commanding that prayers be offered up for the freedom of the Holy Father.

At St. Anthony's Church, mass was said at 9 o'clock, and was a very solemn affair. A large congregation was in attendance, and the choir and priests chanted the litany. The Gonzaga Cadets were in their full dress uniforms, and occupied the main aisle.

At St. Matthew's mass was also celebrated at 9 o'clock, but with the exception of the purple vestments and the chanting of the litany, the service did not differ from the usual one of every day. This quiet observance of the Pope's expressed wish and the Cardinal's mandate was devised by the pastor, Father Lee, who has so many Italians and foreigners in his congregation that it would have been discourteous to make a more pronounced ceremony.

At the Immaculate Conception, St. Patrick's, St. Mary's and the other churches the mass of penance was said and was attended by large congregations.

BROOKLAND ITEMS.

Miss Mamie Forrest, who has been spending the past month in Boston, and the adjacent seaside resorts, will return to Brookland this evening.

Mr. Carl Burg is still in the mountains of Switzerland, and will remain until October, when she goes to Leipzig to pursue her musical studies. Mr. Edward Burg will take a course of oratory in preparation for going on the stage.

Mr. Joseph Burg, who is now practicing law in Pennsylvania, is making a short visit here to his father, Prof. Carl Burg. Dr. Hiram J. Penrod is about to begin building the additional improvements to the old Queenstown Baptist Church, which he will occupy as a dwelling.

The citizens are signing a petition addressed to the Commissioners requesting that a suitable shelter be erected by the directors of the Excelsior & Soldiers' Home Railway at the boundary, where they are obliged to change cars.

The concert given on Wednesday night by the Brookland Drum Corps was a very successful and well attended affair.

WILL EXTEND HIM THE CALL

Dr. Talmage's Coming to Be Decided at a Church Meeting.

Officials Will Meet With the Congregation and Finally Pass Upon the Proposition.

A meeting of elders, deacons, trustees and other officials of the First Presbyterian Church was held last night and it was decided to call a meeting of the congregation for Monday evening next to discuss whether a formal call will be made to Rev. Dr. T. De Witt Talmage, as co-pastor of the church, as fully stated in yesterday's Evening Times.

The present conditions point to a unanimous feeling in favor of making the call to Mr. Talmage, and, judging from the tenor of Dr. Sunderland's remarks, the call will be unanimous, and that the doctor will accept.

The matter, Dr. Sunderland, said, had been discussed by himself and Dr. Talmage, and the latter making the informal proposition to Dr. Talmage, set at rest all feeling that there were any dissensions in the church over his possible coming.

"In a week," he continued, "we will have the greatest preacher in the world in our midst."

The relations of Dr. Adolus Allen, the present co-pastor of the church, will not be disturbed. Dr. Talmage expressed the desire that nothing be changed by his coming. Dr. Sunderland said last evening that the co-pastor would remain, as there is a great deal of work for him to do.

Dr. Sunderland, as stated in The Evening

WORK UNDER NEW RULES

Navy Yard Employees Deprived of Many Legal Privileges.

THEY SEEK THEIR RIGHTS

Deprived of Pay on Holidays Under Certain Conditions—Labor Day an Instance—Tag System and Its Injustice—They Want Leave and Other Privileges Under the Law.

The employees of the Washington Navy Yard feel that they have a number of grievances, so manifestly unjust in character, and of such long duration, notwithstanding repeated but unavailing protests, that quiet forbearance has ceased to be a virtue.

Connected with this branch of the Government service are between 900 and 1,000 men, so far as possible under civil service regulations, and apparently entitled to all the privileges enjoyed by those who perform duty in the various executive departments, or the collateral bureaus.

But instead of being given such recognition as would place them on a footing of equality they claim that they are virtually reduced to a condition of serfdom, treated with the utmost harshness and compelled to sacrifice their self-respect in order to retain their positions, at the same time having heaped upon them a variety of indignities not ordinarily extended to men. Taskmasters and overseers, of all official degrees, have been accustomed to misuse these employees without hindrance, and the formal orders issued by such a high official as the Secretary of the Navy are said to be utterly disregarded by the subordinates presumably charged with their enforcement.

They have long since ceased to renege on being refused annual leave, time allowance for illness or the same holiday that is given other governmental employees when the departments are closed in honor of some distinguished official's death.

DEDUCTED FOR HOLIDAYS.

But these men assuredly do have a grievance in being compelled to suffer a deduction of compensation for legal holidays, especially when such action is in open violation of a plain law. Even this treatment was accepted without remonstrance so long as the officials in immediate control of the navy yard assumed the responsibility for it, but when Secretary Herbert himself became a party to a general feeling prevailed that the climax had been reached.

Up to the latter part of last month there had never been posted at the navy yard an order from the Secretary of the Navy defining the conditions under which remuneration would be withheld for a legal holiday. A couple of days prior to Labor Day an order was posted, signed by Secretary Herbert, announcing that those who did not work the day preceding the holiday would not be paid for the holiday. This order has never been omitted, but a minor official has heretofore invariably assumed the responsibility for it.

The explanation has often been made that these orders are issued for the sole purpose of preventing a few bibulous workmen from beginning their libations a day in advance. This excuse does not come as near holding water as a sane, because, as a matter of plain fact, those desiring to utilize the holiday for purposes of debauchery can work preceding day and then remain away for two and a half days without losing a penny by deduction for the holiday.

In this connection the statement must be made that in the Navy Yard, although it is boasted that civil service regulations prevail there, three consecutive days' absence, without regard to the extenuating circumstances, constitute a dismissal without notification or hearing.

Each man has a tag bearing his number, and it is necessary for him to deposit it twice a day as a matter of record. He can remain away for two days and a half and return without suffering, but the other half day would lose him his position.

INDEX SYSTEM.

The antiquated system of keeping a record of time leaves an opening by which those so disposed can beat the devil at least half way around the stump. A man can come to work on the day preceding a holiday, turn in his tag in the morning, and remain away in the afternoon without a deduction in his compensation.

The naval officers in charge of the yard are given thirty days' leave of absence and all the other time perquisites that appertain to other departments of the government. They are independent and feel it.

The employees of the Navy Yard have hoped that Secretary Herbert was the victim of misinformation in becoming a party to their oppression. His signature was formally affixed to the notice posted, but the document was taken down before an opportunity could be had of copying it verbatim. The Times reporter made a reasonably persistent effort to obtain a copy of it at the Navy Department and Chief Clerk Meow seemed to offer every facility for procuring the search and obtaining the information.

He said the Secretary had issued no order in regard to Labor Day except the usual one applicable to the Department. It would be without precedent, he said, for the Secretary to send such an order to the Navy Yard, as it would be issued by the commandant. He could not find in his letter press books, a copy of any communication to the Navy Yard officials bearing on this subject.

The fact remains, however, that an order was posted in the navy yard notifying all employees that their holiday compensation would be lost if they were absent the preceding day.

It does not seem possible that Secretary Herbert should be ignorant of the fact that an act of Congress gives all employees of the Government, no matter where engaged, a holiday with compensation. They are entitled to their salaries by law so long as their names are carried on the rolls.

PETTY RULES AND ORDERS.

The employees of the navy yard are entirely given over to the abuses and incivilities of petty officials. All the rules, orders and regulations governing the men are made at the yard by these subordinates, and none have originated at the Department except that referring to Labor Day. These rules are not only made without regard to law, but in defiance of the Secretary.

On one occasion the Secretary issued an order that men working extra should quit work at 4 o'clock on Saturdays, but the officer in charge is said to have torn it down and compelled the men to work.

Three years ago a similar notice to that of this year was posted in regard to a holiday. When the law bearing on the case was printed in a local paper the commandant published a long statement declaring that the illegal order was issued by a subordinate while he was absent from the city, or it would not have appeared.

When Secretary Gresham died the employees in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing were given three days' holiday, with pay, but those in the Navy Yard did not get ten minutes to witness the placing of the yard flag at half mast with appropriate ceremonies.

The men believe that the reason for their being reduced to a condition of serfdom is because they are residents of the District and cannot vote. In other words such treatment would neither be tolerated nor given, as the men are citizens and can be of service at the polls.

A year ago the lieutenant commander in charge issued an order and posted it on the tag board to the effect that to-morrow, Labor Day, being a legal holiday, the men might be absent without leave. The official simply appropriated an act of Congress, and took into his own hands the determination of legal rights.
